Swedes Fully Deployed in Paphos Area

The Swedish Contingent, which consists of the 24th Battalion formed from the Royal Grenadier Guards of Sweden, are now fully deployed in the Paphos area with their Headquarters at Xeros.

ARRIVAL

In response to the request of the Secretary-General, U Thant, Sweden agreed on 6 March 1964 to send troops to Cyprus to form part of the United Nations peace-keeping operation in Cyprus — providing she was not the only neutral nation to do so — and the first party arrived on Friday 27 March. They consisted of 9 officers, led by Colonel Jonas Wern, who is the Contingent Commander.

The main advance party, consisting of 7 officers, 16 NCOs and 7 Other Ranks, led by Captain Jan Toll, followed on 4 April in transport planes of the United States Air Force.

With the subsequent arrival of the main body of about 700 men the Swedish Contingent was complete and its numbers about 900.

DEPLOYMENT

They first moved into the western part of the island and by 15 April had taken over responsibility for the Morfou-Polis district. At Xeros on the northwestern coast Colonel Waern has established his Headquarters and also located there is the Contingent's Staff Company.

LIKE HOME

There are three companies in Lefka, Polis and Ktima and high up in the Troodos Mountains there is a signals patrol. Here the signalers find similarities to their homes in Sweden where there is an abundance of pine trees covering the hills.

The Swedish Contingent has been getting to know the local people of the Paphos area by playing football matches with them, meeting them in the villages and helping to escort them during the harvesting time.

BLUE BERET ON RADIO

On Tuesday the 12th May the United Nations Half-Hour programme will include a feature on the “Blue Beret.” The programme begins at 20-30 hrs and is broadcast by the Cyprus Broadcasting Corporation on 606 Kc/s (495 metres).

UNIFICYP POLICE FORCE INCREASES

On Wednesday 6th May 40 members of the Swedish Police arrived in Nicosia. They join the UNIFICYP Civilian Police which already has a party of Austrian Police.

The Swedish Police Unit, headed by Assistant Superintendent HANS LAGERHORN, was reviewed at a parade by General P.S. GYAN at Wolseley Barracks at 1015 hrs on Saturday 9th May. The parade lasted for half an hour and the Swedish Police were wearing the blue berets and arm flashes of the United Nations.

After reviewing the parade General Gyani spoke to the men about their duties in Cyprus. He recalled seeing some who had served with him in the United Nations Emergency Force in Gaza and explained that the task of the UNIFICYP Civilian Police was complementary to that of the soldiers in the Force and that they were both working to the same end. The aim was to reduce tension, remove fear and prevent a recurrence of fighting so that the problems of this country can be solved in a logical and constructive manner.

Meanwhile, a Hasting aircraft of the New Zealand Air Force is scheduled to land in Nicosia on 21 May, bringing 25 New Zealand civilian police who will join the UNIFICYP Civilian Police.

In addition, Australia has agreed to furnish 40 police to UNIFICYP.

The number of the UNIFICYP Civilian Police after the arrival of the Australians should be 113.

Pledge by Liberia

With the promise by Liberia to donate 3,000 US dollars the contributions pledged by countries throughout the world towards the maintenance and cost of the United Nations Force in Cyprus totalled 5,434,800 US dollars on 1 May 1964.

REMINDER

DON'T FORGET THE BLUE BERET PHOTOGRAPHIC COMPETITION. Entries to be in by Monday 8 June. For members of UNIFICYP only, photos should be on themes of UNIFICYP or CYPRUS.

Please include with your photo details of No, Rank, Name, contingent, Address, Home town, and a brief description of your career so far.

UN PLAY LOCAL TEAM

In a well played football match against Akrida near Morhup, a Swedish team from the Staff Coy at Xeros won 3-2. Akrida had a good team and both the players were quick and clever. The Swedes had just received some good players from the recent group that arrived from the Congo. The game was in Morhup was in a good condition and suited the Swedes. It was a fast moving game and there were many quick and accurate passes. After the match the local team arranged a party in their club-house. The director of the club made a speech in Greek which was first translated into English and then translated into Swedish by Colonial Waern. An antique vase was presented to the Swedes by the club and the town’s United Nations society. After the speeches wine, beer, cakes, sandwiches and orange were consumed and the party concluded in a gay manner.

The club has 500 members and besides football there are facilities for handball, volleyball, hockey and athletics.

WHO

"The objective of the World Health Organization shall be the attainment by all peoples of the highest possible level of health."

Thus reads article 1 of the WHO Constitution. WHO was formed in 1946 and now numbers 174 members. The headquarters are in Geneva and there are Regional Offices located in Brazzaville, Washington, D.C., New Delhi, Copenhagen, Alexandria and Manila, with field projects operating in every continent. The medical and administrative staff amount to about 2,600 persons from over 70 countries.

The World Health Organization is an international cooperation for health and membership is open to all countries. Assistance is given by WHO in such subjects as disease, mental and physical health, health services, training and sanitation.

WHO also provides services needed by all countries alike including an epidemic information service, international quarantine measures, standardization of drugs, vaccines and other medical substances and the promotion of research.

WHO is a Specialized Agency of the United Nations.
