The 1987 UNPA Extravaganza, with a galaxy of stars from the British, Irish and Australian Contingents. Rehearsals started early October for this Mid-December production of a traditional British Pantomime, and it was agreed by all that a great time was enjoyed by the cast, the back-stage crew and, in particular, the packed audiences that filled St Michael’s School hall every night.

A CLUB OF THEIR OWN
"TRE KRONOR"

The Swedish Contingent now has got its own CLUB! The opening of the Swedish Club at Blue Beret Camp on 9 Dec 1987 marks a new era in the history of the Swedish Contingent within UNFICYP.

Since the withdrawal of the Swedish Battalion and the close down of Camp Victoria the remaining Swedes in UNFICYP, in all 26 men and their families have now got a new place for social life and other activities.

The Swedish Club has been named "TRE KRONOR" which means Three Crowns. This has been the symbol of the Kingdom of Sweden for a very long time. Tre Kronor has been paid for by the Swedish Government and is very

"YOU CAN'T STAY IN CYPRUS FOREVER"

On 18 Dec 87, WO2 Ian Watts, and family packed their bags and left Cyprus after a hectic 18 months tour of duty. Ian was the WO2 in charge of the UN MP Coy Special Investigation Section. He will now take up duties with the SIB in Wiltshire, U.K.

As is usual Ian would not have been allowed to leave Cyprus had his replacement WO2 Jim Wigram, not arrived. Jim and his family come from Dusseldorf, Germany. Where he was SIB
Detachment Commander.
Traditionally the SIS
Commander is a British SIB WO2, who has four military policeman from different contingents under his supervision.

FAREWELL FROM
60 SQUADRON - ROYAL CORPS OF TRANSPORT

After almost 7 months on the island it is time for us to say goodbye to UNFICYP and hello again to our families and friends in UK. We go at the end of a very successful tour of duty that has introduced many of our soldiers to the relatively modern art of peacekeeping.

Looking back our tour has been dominated by 2 things, firstly the long hot summer that strained our resources of fridge and water vehicles, and secondly the reorganisation of the Force as a result of the Swedish battalion withdrawal. This has certainly added significantly to our workload and will continue to do so for the next 6 - 9 months. We have driven over 650,000 miles in Cyprus and have had only six accidents (which gives us rate of 100,000 miles per accident).
Bearing in mind the unfamiliar road and driving conditions we consider this to be a very good, professional achievement and are delighted to take home a Force
Commander's Road Safety
Certificate for 'excellence'.

Good use has been made of the constant flow of taskings to train and upgrade some of our junior soldiers in their driving skills and we were very pleased indeed with the successes we achieved in the UNFICYP Safe and Skilled Driving Competition.

Apart from improving our skills behind the wheel we have made use of the good water sports facilities in Cyprus, to train at both dinghy sailing and boardsailing;
we now have a variety of Squadron personnel who can not only sail away from the shore but also come back!! A very enthusiastic team entered the DANCON marches in September and we were delighted that Driver Brown achieved one of the best times recorded for years - 6 hours 33 minutes.
AN EXPLANATION OF THE BATTALION

Having had the official history of the Battalion in last months edition of 'The Blue Beret' it might be worth be worth a few column inches to give a further insight into The King's Own Royal Border Regiment.

First and foremost, the soldiers are recruited from the North West of England, centering around two old cities, Lancaster and Carlisle. Carlisle and the surrounding area produces a hardy breed of chap known as a 'Marra'. They come from towns in Cumbria such as Whitehaven, Egremont,Frizington,Kendal and Workington. This is the 'Border' connection of the Regiment. Further South, from Lancashire and the surrounding area, we get the 'Kings Own' connection and soldiers from Warrington, Liverpool and Lancaster. These men are tough, adaptable fellows, with a language of their own (totally unintelligible to a Southerner). They like to have a drink occasionally and have an outstanding sense of humour. Like all British soldiers they spend a good deal of time cribbing (complaining) but there's an old saying in the British Army - 'A soldiers not happy unless he's cribbing'. They are easy to spot in civilian clothing, as most of them have a fascinating array of tattoos, they wear old jeans, white socks (always) and T-Shirts or similar. They tend to have short hair and all these things make them quite distinctive. If you ever spot one, buy him a drink, quickly.

Officers in the Battalion can come from more or less anywhere in the UK and can often be observed rushing around madly in an attempt to hold down their jobs. They are something of a 'mixed bag' (all groups represented) but one common bond exists between them all. They will never turn down the opportunity to get outside a drink or two.

In civilian clothes they have a habit of wearing striped shirts, loud ties, jumpers, corduroy trousers and suede shoes or brogues. If you ever spot one, invite him to a party immediately, particularly if he is on his own, (he's probably lost).

The Battalion spent 2 years on active service in Belfast, Northern Ireland. It was a very successful tour, and most soldiers actually enjoyed it immensely. Service in NI can be fairly gruelling, with long periods of working without a break and a very real threat. Urban patrolling in areas of Belfast and rural patrolling in South Armagh (on the border with Eire) has become 'old hat' for even the youngest members of the Battalion, and manning OPs and VCPs is a skill familiar to all. Hence the move to Cyprus and UN duties should present few problems for them.

Last year we spent 6 weeks training in Canada, and took part in a 3 week Brigade Field Training Exercise. This tour represents something of a reward for the Battalion following several hard years. It is a priviledge for us to be working with the UN, and we are planning to make the best of it.

KINGS OWN BORDERS PICTORIAL

The Drums Platoon under Drum Major Berry were in action on Boxing Day. Normally found at St David's Camp doing a variety of Camp duties, The 26th December found them down at Avia Napa playing for (and with!) a Greek Cypriot audience.

On Christmas Eve, a Carol Service took place at St David's Camp. Here the Commanding Officer reads a lesson, with the RGMS shedding light on the situation.

GUNFIRE!

Well done Pte French, Burma Coy. He's just earned himself an extra weeks leave in the OP briefing competition, sponsored by OC Burma, Major Phelan. Pictured here giving one such briefing it has to be said that he is quite good. Shame about his beret though.

Gunfire is an old British Army tradition, dating back to The Crimean War. It is a mixture of tea and rum, distributed to soldiers on Christmas morning by Officers and SnCOs. Pictured here, Colour Sergeant Cars of The Assault Pioneer Platoon (Dressed as Santa Claus) hands out gunfire to some Danish troops. If truth be told most soldiers become quite irritated, being woken up early on Christmas morning, and made to drink the stuff!

The 1987 UNFICYP pantomime 'Aladdin', performed on 10-12 Dec, realised a profit of £1170. Looking on are Mrs Myroulla Potonidou, the Senior Admin Assistant, UNDP, and WO1 Alan Barton, who directed and produced the pantomime.

THE AUSCON COMMENC CREW

By Lcpl E. ROETHY

0700 hrs.: I open the door to the COMMENC, enter and take place, still tired from the last very hard night. The radios and telephones are working, just the RV - our connection to Nicosia - is out of order once more and I try to fix it.

0830 hrs.: The Blue - break starts, but not for me.

1300 hrs.: From now on the duty in the COMMENC is very boring but I am lucky, my comrade has to take over.

I get really busy: One call after the other, one message on the radio followed by another and, of course, the teleprinter is working, too.

I am now in the field building and repairing telephone lines, installing antennas etc. Searching for a break in the wire is a hard job, but quite interesting because we are on the road, see a lot of things and even meet nice people. It's a pity that nobody notices our work except if there is a breakdown, but nevertheless - if you call the AUSCON and hear the friendly voice of the operator - it's me or one of my comrades.

60 SQN RCT FOOTBALL TEAM

Football has been our main claim to fame in the sports arena and we have even managed a match against the Mayor of Nicosia's Team. Our final results are: played 20, won 12, drawn 2 and lost 6.

Other popular out-of-hours activities have been visiting Ayia Napa (very popular!), kart racing and helping to look after the CSPCA Dogs Home we helped to move from eastern Nicosia to new premises near the Morphou Gate.

Overall we have gained a great deal of experience from our tour in UNFICYP and we hope that in exchange we have contributed something towards life in the Force. See you again in 1990!

UNICORNS RUGBY
1987/88

By Capt D J Croxford

Rugby is a game played by men with odd shaped balls ... and they certainly don't come much odder than the UNICORNS Rugby Team. The team is predominately British with members from Sector 2, Support Regt and the FSC Sqn. However UNICIPOL have produced some good players even if the rules are slightly different in Australia.

The UNICORNS have met with remarkable success considering that team selection happens only 15 mins before kick off, once those who have managed to get away from duties turn up. Under the Captainship of WO2 Mick Jory from Support Regt the team won the Plate in the All Island Rugby Tournament held at Ayios Nikolas in November. SSgt Chris Bird has now taken over as Captain and is hoping for 1st place in the Island League. UNICORNS are currently 3rd after narrowly losing to the FLAMINGDEES (Akrotiri) by a lucky try in the 59th second of the 88th minute of the match. C'est la guerre! At least UNICORNS won the 3rd half!

VISIT OF THE AUSTRIAN MINISTER OF DEFENCE

The Austrian Minister of Defence Dr. Robert Lichal visited the AUSCON from 11th until 13th December.

He was very keen to inspect the Austrian UN Contingent and to become acquainted with the new sector.

Of course, our soldiers did their best as always and when the Minister left Cyprus he was satisfied that the Austrian peacekeepers are doing their job well.

"UN COY PIPER"

The UN MP Coy is unique. Personnel who make up the 52 man company, from seven different nationalities, bring with them a repertoire of musical talents ranging from baritone voice to musical spoons.

Our most recent musical acquisition is Sgt Frank Stubbert from Dartmouth, Nova Scotia, Canada. His claim to fame is that he is, "The best piper in the UN". Well that would be hard to dispute.

Sgt Frank Stubbert the "best piper in the UN"

as to our knowledge he is the only piper serving with UNFICYP.

Since Sgt Stubbert's arrival in Cyprus on 23 Nov 87, he has played for six official functions already and several spontaneous gatherings.

He is in great demand and will be happy to play for your official function when he is not engaged in his primary duty of MP Shift Commander at Nicosia. He tells us that his fee is negotiable.
The 4200 ton ship HMS Brazen docked in Limassol at the end of November, on her way back from duties in the Gulf. HMS Brazen is a type 22 frigate equipped with Exocet, Seawolf, torpedoes and Bofors guns as well as having two Lynx helicopters. Her visit to Limassol was particularly well timed, as she is the affiliated ship of the 9th/12th Royal Lancers. An invitation to visit was put out by the officers and crew and around 40 members of the Squadron set off for Limassol by coach. They arrived to find Four Troop already onboard heavily engaged in the more important task of finding the various wardroom bars. After a quick tour beneath decks, members of the Scout Car Squadron disappeared to every corner of the ship to begin the true purpose of the visit. At the last port of call before Limassol the ship had replenished with the usual necessities, but had greatly overestimated the beer requirement, infact there were so many cans of beer that HMS Brazen was in danger of sinking when she docked in Limassol.

On the 26th of November DANCN held a Commemoration Service for LCpl F. Thomsen who was killed on the same day in 1981 in a traffic accident on the Selemani Road.

COMMEMORATION

HMS Brazen is the affiliated ship of the 9th-/12th Royal Lancers.

2 Tp prepare to board the good ship Brazen

Luckily, with the help of the Scout Car Squadron they began the difficult task of drinking the ship to safety and by teatime she was sitting considerably higher in the water and had been saved from the waves.

The next day saw a return visit by the Navy to Prince William Camp. A tour of the UN Camp was arranged along with Ferret driving and after fairly hefty lunches in which many new games were learnt, both parties provided a football side to test Army/Navy strengths on land. On this occasion the Squadron came away victors with a score of 8-1. The Navy are looking to install deck football on their ships on patrol.

LOWLANDERS IN HIGH GROUNDS

CHARLIE COMPANY looks after the westernmost part of Sector 1 from the KOKKINA enclave to the Xeros river. A distance, as the crow flies, of 24 kilometres. As the landrover crawls, however, the journey takes the better part of three hours.

The Kokkina unit will be disbursed separately in a later article.

The Company operates eight observations posts, each manned for two weeks at a time by 4 UN-soldiers. Each OP has unique and characteristic features. D-11 Kato Pyrgos observes the sea north of Cyprus and salutes travellers passing by 50 metres below the OP on the road to Kato Pyrgos. From the highest OP in Cyprus, 371 metres above the sea at the very top of the Selemani Mountain, the view down to Selemani valley from D-12 is breath taking. Until recently the OP was inaccessible except by helicopter. D-13 Variasha overlooks the deserted village with the same name while guarding the water dispensing tower where three different padlocks had to be opened simultaneously by the muchas of Loutres, Variasha and Galini when someone wished to inspect the correct water distribution to the villages. D-14 Kambos Road still maintains the old virtues of the former roadside restaurant in which it resides. Now only UN patrols may enjoy the kind hospitality on the shady porch. When approaching D-26 Ambelikou your nostrils may suddenly catch the sweet smell of fresh bread. The OP hut is located in the old village bakery and the UN soldiers there have carried the tradition and the skills over to modern times. D-35 Mavrovouni overlooks from its 264 metres above sea level, the ancient copper mines of Mavrovouni. In addition, the OP is located right in the centre of one of the best hunting areas in Cyprus.

The UN patrol track connects all these interesting places. It is patrolled daily by reconnaissance squads from CHARLIE Company. During the rainy season, the track becomes hazardous to a degree where only the most experienced drivers from the company are permitted to use it. Heavy rainfalls in the Troodos mountains each year erode the track in several places and turn the usually dry rivers into dangerous streams.

Until a few years ago, all resupply and rotation was done by Wessex helicopters. This solution is still an option open to us when things are really bad.

Camp CHARLIE is in Limnitis/Yesiilmak on the north side of the UNBZ. From the base, food and other supplies are distributed three times a week to the men "at the top". All general service functions are performed by the personnel at Limnitis Camp.

Without them the main task: maintaining peace and stability could not be accomplished.

The Charlie Track
— A Hairy, All weather Experience
There is definite tone of excitement in the air. You can almost smell it; cut it with a knife. The audience is full to capacity as it approaches seven o'clock. Suddenly, there is a rumble, a roar of music and the houselights go out. The gunners in the bleachers rise to their feet to greet the oncoming three hours of entertainment with an applause that almost drowns out the small voice saying, "Ladies and gentlemen, welcome to Heartbeat Canada, 1987."

The singers and dancers of the CANCON show gave a performance not soon to be forgotten in the hearts of all our gunners. There were many hours of hard work that went into rehearsing an event such as this. The sound checks, the dance routines, the songs, the lighting; everything rehearsed and rehearsed, trying to reach perfection in every performance. It paid off in the end as the lights finally went out and the performers entered on stage.

Heartbeat Canada 1987, a tour which brought the performers to our soldiers in various parts of the middle-east and Germany, and ended its tour in Cyprus, was a tremendous success. Our gunners were more than eager to welcome them with a heart-warming round of applause, worthy of any homecoming greeting in Canada. They had waited since the beginning of November for this show and now it was finally here! For the gunners in the bleachers it was an evening which brought them back home. One only had to see the smiles on their faces to attest to this fact!
